This is a story about one very wealthy and greedy fox. ~~Everyone in the forest called him a villian, because~~ He robbed at least once almost all the animals there. It was so easy for him, because he had the magick stick, that he founded near to the Great tree, the heart of the forest. This stick could make everyone sleep any animal and they couldn't even notice that for a long time. This is not the ~~only~~ thing this stick can do, it's powers can be set in your ways, so fox made everyone sleep and then took ~~set in your ways~~ their wealths with the magick hands, that he made with this stick, to the Great tree. This tree also lighted up the ~~entire~~ forest and helped animals to see each other. The heart of this forest became a house for this fox. The lights of this tree became black and stopped to light the forest ~~for animals~~. All of them: rabbits, bears, owls, cats and dogs ran to the tree to find out what happened. Barely seeing something, they came to the grape garden near to the tree. They heard something from through the grapevines. When they came closer they looked to Fox laughing above all the money and ~~wealths~~ he robbed ~~from animals~~. All of them came directly to him, but he didn't even beat an eye. Then ~~mighty~~ bear quitly toked his magick stick and with a bang sounds it's cracked and fox become a little silly frog, ~~that not interested at robbing animals now~~. The moral of this story is that no one can make his own place under the sun with the things that make others unhappy.
